Threat Assessment: President Reagan's Trip To Western Europe

Summary

This is the second of three threat assessments in advance of President Reagan's trip to Western Europe in early June 1982. This assessment examines the situation in light of political and other developments of the past month. It also considers the potential danger to the Presidential party from hostile demonstrations. At this time, we have no evidence that any terrorist group has considered attacking the President while he is in Europe. However, some terrorist groups may use the trip to exploit its attendant publicity by attacking US nationals and installations in the region.

This memorandum was prepared by [redacted] of the International Terrorism Branch, Office of Global Issues, Central Intelligence Agency. It was coordinated within the Directorate of Operations and with the Interagency Counterterrorism Intelligence Committee. It contains information received by 22 April 1982. Questions and comments should be addressed to the Chief, International Terrorism Branch at [redacted]
